Intermediate Level

Psychotherapy

4 day training

February 23 - 26, 2010

Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy

for children and youth with attachment or trauma problems

Intermediate Level DDP training is open to clinicians who have completed the Beginning Level or a previous equivalent four to five day training with Dan. Training will build on the Beginning Level. Participants are asked to bring a video tape of their work for group feedback and to explore their own attachment histories with two other participants.

The principles and interventions are presented through formal presentations, discussion, video tapes or treatment sessions, role play, and handouts.

Dan's Treatment Model

Dyadic Developmental Psychotherapy is family-based and focused on facilitating the child's ability to establish a secure attachment with his/her caregivers. Developmental attachment theory and research is the primary model used for relationship development and trauma resolution. Dan blends various approaches into his treatment modality. These include family therapy, Ericksonian hypnotherapy, psychodynamic principles, psychodrama, and interventions congruent with Theraplay and narrative work. He actively communicates PACE in order to co-regulate the affect associated with past experiences and to co-construct new meanings of these experiences.
